LYONHURST, BEAUTY SPOT OF VA. HILLS

Home of Washington Lawyer
Commands Extensive View of Surroundings.

Lyonhurst, the home of Frank Lyon, situated in Washington District, Arlington county, Va., was built in 1907, and is a place of great beauty and attractiveness as a home. It is located upon a hill 500 feet above tide-water, and the view is extensive and beautiful. One of the striking features is a water tower about sixty feet high from the top of which the country for miles around may be surveyed.

Lyonhurst embraces about twelve acres, and is noted for its shrubbery. English ivy covers the house which is of Spanish architecture. Evergreens of every variety have been gathered on the lawn and boxwood bushes and trees 100 years old are numerous. The lawn covers five or six acres, and is kept in excellent condition.

The house has about fifteen rooms with three or four baths and out-buildings are provided for all purposes as Mr. Lyon produces on the premises practically everything the household consumes. He has built a house for his daughter on part of the land and the two houses make an attractive setting. The property adjoins the Washington Country Club and is well known to golf players.

ATHLETICS

Baseball at Clarendon today, 2:30. Metropolitan A. C. vs. Clarendon. Since each of the contenders trimmed the Knickerbockers, an interesting battle should take place. On Decoration Day, the Knickerbockers and Clarendon Athletic Association, and the Elks of the Fraternal League and Clarendon travel to Leesburg the 4th of July for a benefit game for the Leesburg Highway project.

Standing committee: The chairman of each committee will hand the names of its committee to the secretary for record.

Road signs: Now that Clarendon is coming into its own, and it is so easy for visitors traveling in autos to become entangled in the labyrinth of roads in and about Rosslyn, it is highly advisable that suitable signs showing the direction to Clarendon be placed on these various highways.

Ladies night: The question will be brought before the association to decide what night it is best to entertain ladies.

Speaker: William W. Price, better known as "Bill" Price, of Heard and Seen fame in The Washington Times, will be present with various manuscripts which he is not permitted to publish.

Md. Attorney General
Points Out Defect in Volstead Act

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 21.—Attorney General Alex. Armstrong, of Maryland, whose home is in Hagerstown, answering reports that have been circulated that he had pointed out wherein, in his opinion, the Volstead law is defective, said:

"I was asked to point out in which respect I felt that the Volstead law was defective in failing to clothe State officers with the right to make arrests for violations. I state again, as I stated last summer, that in my judgment the act ought to contain express language conferring the right upon State officers to make arrests and that until such language is introduced into the act the State officers do not possess the right to make summary arrests."

ROSSLYN

The engineering department of the War Department has been requested to pay more attention to the Virginia approach to the Aqueduct bridge, the present condition being deplorable on account of the recent rains, the bottom having practically dropped out of the road, causing great inconvenience to travelers. It is a difficult task to keep this road up on account of heavy Government trucks.

Rosslyn has developed into quite a business community, the Rosslyn Packing Company, the Cherry Smash Corporation, the Washington Paper Salvage Company with an entirely new terra cotta plant, the Rosslyn Gas Company, Crupper's new lumber yard, Murphy & Ames, in the same line of business; the Master Dyers' Association, the Rosslyn Milling Corporation, seven garages and auto accessory stores, the Sanitary Grocery Company, a modern, up-to-date lunch room, the Arlington Trust Company, the only bank in Arlington county, three modern, up-to-date newspaper publishing plants with linotypes, cylinder presses and other equipment, making a regular little Western metropolis to the gateway to the South.

Needle 12 Years in Foot.

BOOTLEG TURNS APPLE
INTO STONE, HE SAYS
SUTHERLIN, Ore., May 21.—Ten years ago W. E. St. John, president of the Oregon Growers' Co-operative Association, placed a Spitzberg apple in a jar and covered it with a liquid mixture intended to preserve it for exhibition purposes. Recently he removed the apple and found it to be stone-petrified, even to a portion of the stem.

St. John does not recall the formula used in preserving the fruit, but is inclined to believe the mixture was very similar to that now being used by bootleggers in the manufacture of their product.

GREATER TOURIST HIGHWAY PLANNED

Will Be First of Through Routes to Be Constructed in Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., May 21.—The State Highway Department is planning to build a modern highway from Bristol to Lynchburg, as the first of the through routes to be constructed in the State as soon as sufficient funds are available. It is stated unofficially by William F. Cooke, assistant State highway commissioner. The road from Bristol to Lynchburg is impassable in three places during wet weather, Mr. Cooke stated. While there is agitation for a concrete road along the "Capitol Highway," over which tourist traffic is perhaps heavier than on any other route in the State, yet there is no time of the year when it is impossible to get from Alexandria to the North Carolina line, he declared.

On the contrary, there is considerable tourist traffic from the west which goes through Bristol and turns south of Lynchburg. "We believe it better to build a passable road first for that traffic," he said.

The Capitol Highway is the main artery of travel from the north, through Washington, D. C., to Florida and other points in the southeastern part of the country. This highway runs through Alexandria, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Dinwiddie, South Hill, Boydton and Clarksville.

This road, from Dinwiddie to South Hill is extremely rough, but never impassable. Mr. Cooke called attention to the fact that the State maintains the road which turns off near Dinwiddie and runs through Lawrenceville, but that garage keepers and the American Automobile Association have been routing tourists over a country road which is very rough in spots.

The Highway Department is now ready to call for bids on the Louisa-Charlottesville Pike. Louisa county recently voted $200,000 in bonds to loan the State for construction of the road from Louisa to the Albemarle county line.

Although this was contested by a lawyer, the Supreme Court of Appeals has ruled the action of the legislature in passing this law valid. Under the same decision, money was made available for the construction of five miles of road from Seabell to the Sussex county line, in Southampton county, on the Petersburg-Norfolk road, by way of Courtland. Bids are ready to be advertised for on both these sections of road as soon as the counties have sold the bonds.

The Highway Department announced that bids have been received and awards are pending on the following five sections of road:

Williamsburg, James City county, two and one-half miles on either end of the city.

Jonesville, Lee county, five miles west.

Wytheville, Wythe county, nine miles west of the Smyth county line.

Fork Union, Fluvanna county, seven miles to Browns Creek, Virginia.

Aldie, Loudoun county, twelve miles east to the Fairfax county line, on Route 6. This road is a section of the Alexandria-Winchester Boulevard, which is now in process of construction, but which will take over four years to complete.
